drawing is thinking thinking is moving these words summarize the layered work of belgian artist ronny delrue b 1957 for many years drawing has been central to his oeuvre on the one hand a drawing is an autonomous artwork but on the other hand it is the direct crystallization of a fleeting line of thought that systematically opens the door to new work drawing is therefore not only the result but also the engine of creativity for the artist especially in the case of delrue who not only draws with pencil and paper but also with photographs ceramics and other materials for delrue drawing is the culmination of a mental image and the genesis of the image and its immediate meaning are contained in the lines of the drawing itself that is why his drawings offer an intimate look inside the mind of an artist who on the basis of his own reality shaped by memories emotions and opinions recreates the world a little bit on every page for this book philippe van cauterem director of s m a k ghent selected a series of important drawings from delrue's extensive corpus three different authors focus on this selection and have shed light on the importance of the drawing in delrue's practice copublished with hannibal

in this fascinating look at the creative power of institutions jonah siegel explores the rise of the modern idea of the artist in the nineteenth century a period that also witnessed the emergence of the museum and the professional critic treating these developments as interrelated he analyzes both visual material and literary texts to portray a culture in which art came to be thought of in powerful new ways ultimately siegel shows that artistic controversies commonly associated with the self consciously radical movements of modernism and postmodernism have their roots in a dynamic era unfairly characterized as staid self satisfied and stable the nineteenth century has been called the age of the museum and yet critics art theorists and poets during this period grappled with the question of whether the proliferation of museums might lead to the death of art itself did the assembly and display of works of art help the viewer to understand them or did it numb the senses how was the contemporary artist to respond to the vast storehouses of art from disparate nations and periods that came to proliferate in this era siegel presents a lively discussion of the shock experienced by neoclassical artists troubled by remains of antiquity that were trivial or even obscene as well as the anxious aesthetic reveries of nineteenth century art lovers overwhelmed by the quantity of objects quickly crowding museums and exhibition halls in so doing he illuminates the fruitful crises provoked when the longing for admired art is suddenly satisfied drawing upon neoclassical art and theory biographies of early nineteenth century writers including keats and scott and the writings of art critics such as hazlitt ruskin and wilde this book reproduces a cultural matrix that brings to life the artistic passions and anxieties of an entire era

Jasper Johns, one of the most influential artists of our time, has been the subject of intense public scrutiny since his landmark first exhibition in 1958. Yet this book, published in conjunction with the 1996-97 exhibition Jasper Johns: A Retrospective at the Museum of Modern Art, is the first to present this very private figure in his own words. It brings together Johns's few written articles, key interviews, and the fullest selection ever of his sketchbook drawings and notes. Important parts of this material are published here for the first time; others have previously been unavailable in English. The provocative originality and subtlety of Johns's thoughts on art and his well-known concern with precision in language are evident throughout. This volume will be indispensable for the study of the artist and will provide fascination and pleasure for all readers interested in contemporary creativity.

A practical guide for everyone working in the artistic and cultural sector to help to focus creativity and energy on the most important thing: art. It is just the right moment for this guide. Hubert Eckart, German theater technology society in theatres, operas, orchestras, and other cultural institutions: artists are constantly under pressure to deliver artistic excellence despite adverse working conditions, personal challenges, and interpersonal conflicts. In this book, theatre and mental coach Christina Barandun provides first aid with tips and practical exercises. She shows how artists in their complex, creative, and chaotic workplace can better deal with stress and psychological strain, how they can strengthen their resources, their ability to communicate, and how to handle conflict. Christina Barandun manages to pass on her well-founded specialist knowledge in a practical, lively, and creative way. She sees the needs of the individual and does not lose sight of the big picture. Tanja Krischer, German theatre and orchestra association: an effective toolkit for working on and behind the stage. Katrin Reichardt, Aalto Musiktheater Essen: you learn more about yourself and how to deal responsibly with others. Wolfgang Heuer, German occupational health and safety insurance.
