poetry is product of an exquisite sensibility the ability to respond to complex emotional or aesthetic influences is there a sensibility unique to a country or its people directly flowing from their cultural conscious apart from the poet s own sensitivity to the influences around him the sensibility relates to the people who form his milieu an indian poet writing in english will draw from his own cultural conscious and incorporate in his vision complex aesthetic influences working on him to produce poetry that relates to his people such work will still have some appeal to a global audience because the english that results is a unique creation of western expression with indian flavor the myths that form the stuff of poetry may have been born in the indian soil but its memes defined as units of cultural expression will always have something in them to appeal to a much wider audience we do not have daffodils in india for a bloomsbury poet to write poems about but we have our own unique sensory influences to work upon but essentially poetry remains a universal experience that is enjoyed by audiences anywhere in the world the 175 odd poems in this collection are rooted in indian sensibility the imagery used in them are reflective of the language patterns employed by the people of this country their recurring myths are familiar to an average indian and do not warrant scholastic efforts to relate them to their context britain and beyond for whom he is one of the essential poets of the twentieth century his work has also received increasing attention from academic writers and students for both readers and critics the nature of macneice s poetic work as a whole is a matter of importance and the second posthumous collected poems entirely re edited by peter mcdonald attempts for the first time to print macneice s poetry in groupings corresponding closely to the collections published by faber between 1935 and 1963 this makes it easier to read the poet in the published forms in which he was read by his contemporaries in choosing to re create the environments of macneice s individual volumes of poetry moreover this new collected reflects the opinion that macneice works best in and through those separate volumes particularly so in the brilliant return to form and unique kinds of return on lyric form itself of the last three collections the texts of the poems in the new edition are based on a comparison of all printed versions as revised in the light of the poet s later thoughts this has resulted in a large number of changes it is hoped that the present edition presents macneice s poetry more accurately as well as more fully than all previous collections the new collected poems also includes as appendices the last ditch the short book of poems which macneice published with the cuala press in 1940 and the revenant a cycle of songs written for macneice s wife the singer hedli anderson a selection of uncollected early poems and from blind fireworks macneice s first published book of verse mapped by a number of writers from George Gissing to Virginia Woolf from late Victorian London to the end of the World War II. Underground writing created an imaginative world beneath the streets of London. The real subterranean railway was therefore re-enacted in number of ways in writing including as Dantean underworld or hell as gateway to a utopian future as psychological looking glass or as place of safety and security. The book is a chronological study from the opening of the first underground in the 1860s to its role in WW2. Each chapter explores perspectives on the underground in a number of writers starting with George Gissing in the 1880s moving through the work of H.G. Wells and into the writing of the 1920s and 1930s including Virginia Woolf and George Orwell. It concludes with its portrayal in the fiction, poetry and art including Henry Moore of WW2. The approach takes a broadly cultural studies perspective crossing the boundaries of transport history, literature and London urban studies. It draws mainly on fiction but also uses poetry, art, journals, postcards and posters to illustrate it. It links the actual underground trains, tracks and stations to the metaphorical world of underground writing and places the writing in a social political context.
