Images of "Hua Mulan" in Films of the Past Century □ Changes of Chinese Social Focus Shown on the Silver Screen 2015-10-29 writing the materialities of the past offers a close analysis of how the materiality of the built environment has been repressed in historical thinking since the 1950s author sam griffiths argues that the social theory of cities in this period was characterised by the dominance of socio economic and linguistic cultural models which served to impede our understanding of time space relationality towards historical events and their narration the book engages with studies of historical writing to discuss materiality in the built environment as a form of literary practice to express marginalised dimensions of social experience in a range of historical contexts it then moves on to reflect on england s nineteenth century industrialization from an architectural topographical perspective challenging theories of space and architecture to examine the complex role of industrial cities in mediating social changes in the practice of everyday life by demonstrating how the authenticity of historical accounts rests on materially emplaced narratives griffiths makes the case for the emancipatory possibilities of historical writing he calls for a re evaluation of historical epistemology as a primarily socio scientific or literary enquiry and instead proposes a specifically architectural time space figuration of historical events to rethink and refresh the relationship of the urban past to its present and future written for postgraduate students researchers and academics in architectural theory and urban studies griffiths draws on the space syntax tradition of research to explore how contingencies of movement and encounter construct the historical imagination

Water Societies and Technologies from the Past and Present 1994 how should one write a history of ancient israel in the last few decades a lively discussion has taken place on the historiography of ancient israel minimalists such as philip davies thomas thompson and niels peter lemche challenged the usefulness of the hebrew bible as a source for constructing israel s past maximalists like baruch halpern and william dever argued instead that the data from the hebrew bible should be trusted until otherwise proven others among whom we can name hans barstad rainer albertz and lester grabbe took a third road the essays in this volume follow that third road by applying insights from the field of philosophy of history a dozen case studies from david to the earliest samaritans demonstrate how difficult it is to write a history of ancient israel without falling in the abyss of an ideology in one direction or another the matrix designed by manfred weippert to look at the past through five windows landscape climate archaeology epigraphy and only at the end the hebrew bible turned out to be more helpful the conclusion of this research is that there are some stable pillars in the swamp of the past but it comes with the warning that the space between these pillars is large and cannot easily be filled

Lifelines from Our Past 2016-08-11 historically the first observation of a transmissible lytic agent that is specifically active against a bacterium bacillus anthracis was by a russian microbiologist nikolay gamaleya in 1898 at that time however it was too early to make a connection to another discovery made by dmitri ivanovsky in 1892 and martinus Beijerinck in 1898 on a non bacterial pathogen infecting tobacco plants thus the viral world was discovered in two of the three domains of life and our current understanding is that viruses represent the most abundant biological entities on the planet the potential of bacteriophages for infection treatment have been recognized after the discoveries by Frederick Twort and Felix d Hérelle in 1915 and 1917 subsequent phage therapy developments however have been overshadowed by the remarkable success of antibiotics in infection control and treatment and phage therapy research and development persisted mostly in the former Soviet Union countries Russia and Georgia as well as in France and Poland the dramatic rise of antibiotic resistance and especially of multi drug resistance among human and animal bacterial pathogens however challenged the position of antibiotics as a single most important pillar for infection control and treatment thus there is a renewed interest in phage therapy as a possible additive alternative therapy especially for the infections that resist routine antibiotic treatment the basis for the revival of phage therapy is affected by a number of issues that need to be resolved before it can enter the arena which is traditionally reserved for antibiotics probably the most important is the regulatory issue how should phage therapy be regulated similarly to drugs then the co evolving nature of phage bacterial host relationship will be a major hurdle for the production of consistent phage formulae or should we resort to the phage products such as lysins and the corresponding engineered versions in order to have accurate and consistent delivery doses we still have very limited knowledge about the pharmacodynamics of phage therapy more data obtained in animal models are necessary to evaluate the phage therapy efficiency compared for example to antibiotics another aspect is the safety of phage therapy how do phages interact with the immune system and to what costs or benefits what are the risks in the course of phage therapy of transduction of undesirable properties such as virulence or antibiotic resistance genes how frequent is the development of bacterial host resistance during phage therapy understanding these and many other aspects of phage therapy basic and applied is the main subject of this topic
