direct methods of crystal structure determination are usually associated with techniques in which phases for a set of structure factors are determined from the corresponding experimental amplitudes by probabilistic calculations it is thus implied that such ab initio phase calculations do not require a knowledge of atomic positions and this basis distinguishes direct methods from other techniques for structure determination an acceptably wider interpretation of the term direct methods leads to other important applications involving inter alia the use of heavy atoms resolution limited phase data for large molecules rotation functions and fourier series these topics are discussed in the later chapters of this book although some earlier theoretical investigations were made by harker and kaspar direct methods may be considered to have begun around the year 1950 important landmarks in the development of the subject include the book by hauptmann and karle the centrosymmetric crystal 1953 the definitive paper by karle and karle in acta crystallographica 1966 and the recent 1978 sophisticated program package multan 78 produced mainly by germain main and woolfson woolfson s book direct methods in crystallography was published in 1961 but because of the rapid progress in direct methods much of it soon became outmoded it is interesting to note that direct methods nearly came into being many years earlier certainly the e2 relationship was used implicitly by lonsdale in 1928 in determining the crystal structure of hexamethylbenzene
