modern sentimentalism examines how american female novelists reinvented sentimentalism in the modernist period just as the birth of the modern woman has long been imagined as the death of sentimental feeling modernist literary innovation has been understood to reject sentimental aesthetics modern sentimentalism reframes these perceptions of cultural evolution taking up icons such as the new woman the flapper the free lover the new negro woman and the divorcee this book argues that these figures embody aspects of a traditional sentimentality while also recognizing sentiment as incompatible with ideals of modern selfhood these double binds equally beleaguer the protagonists and shape the styles of writers like willa cather edith wharton anita loos and jessie fauset modern sentimentalism thus translates nineteenth century conventions of sincerity and emotional fulfillment into the skeptical self-conscious modes of interwar cultural production reading canonical and under examined novels in concert with legal briefs scientific treatises and other transatlantic period discourse and combining traditional and quantitative methods of archival research modern sentimentalism demonstrates that feminine feeling far from being peripheral to twentieth century modernism animates its central principles and preoccupations

this book investigates sisterhood as a converging thread that wove female subjectivities and intersubjectivities into a larger narrative of chinese modernity embedded in a newly conceived global context it focuses on the period between the late qing reform era around the turn of the twentieth century and the outbreak of the second sino japanese war in 1937 which saw the emergence of new ways of depicting chinese womanhood in various kinds of media in a critical hermeneutic approach zhu combines an examination of an outside perspective how narratives and images about sisterhood were mobilized to shape new identities and imaginations with that of an inside perspective how subjects saw themselves as embedded in or affected by the discourse and how they negotiated such experiences within texts or through writing with its working definition of sisterhood covering biological as well as all kinds of symbolic and metaphysical connotations this book exams the literary and cultural representations of this elastic notion with attention to on the one hand a supposedly collective identity shared by all modern chinese female subjects and on the other hand the contesting modes of womanhood that were introduced through the juxtaposition of divergent sisters through an interdisciplinary approach that brings together historical materials literary and cultural analysis and theoretical questions zhu conducts a careful examination of how new identities subjectivities and sentiments were negotiated and mediated through the hermeneutic circuits around sisterhood
