Futures of the Human Subject

2022-09-07

futures of the human subject focuses on the representation of the effects of technology use on human subjectivity in several recent near future science fiction novels sharing the idea that human subjects are constructed in the world in which they exist this volume inscribes itself in the wider field of posthumanism which contests the liberal humanist notion of people as self contained autonomous agents at the same time it is the first substantial study of literary representations of the human subject carried out within the conceptual framework of foucault inflected philosophy of technical mediation which examines the nature of the relation between people and specific technologies as well as the way in which this relation affects human subjectivity as such the book may help readers to exercise more effective control over the way in which they are constituted as subjects in this technologically saturated world neoliberalism is fast becoming the dominant ideology of our age yet politicians businessmen and academics rarely identify themselves with it and even political forces critical of it continue to carry out neoliberal policies around the globe how can we make sense of this paradox who actually are the neoliberals this is the first explanation of neoliberal hegemony which systematically considers and analyzes the networks and organizations of around 1 000 self conscious neoliberal intellectuals organized in the mont pèlerin society this book challenges simplistic understandings of neoliberalism it underlines the variety of neoliberal schools of thought the various approaches of its proponents in the fight for hegemony in research and policy development political and communication efforts and the well funded well coordinated and highly effective new types of knowledge organizations generated by the neoliberal movement partisan think tanks it also closes an important gap in the growing literature on private authority presenting new perspectives on transnational civil society formation processes this fascinating new book will be of great interest to students of international relations political economy globalization and politics monsters are a part of every society and ours is no exception they are deeply embedded in our history our mythos and our culture however treating them as simply a facet of children s stories or escapist entertainment belittles their importance when examined closely we see that monsters have always represented the things we fear that which is different which we can t understand which is dangerous which is other but in many ways monsters also represent our growing awareness of ourselves and our changing place in a continually shrinking world contemporary portrayals of the monstrous often have less to do with what we fear in others than with what we fear about ourselves what we fear we might be capable of the nineteen essays in this volume explore the place and function of the monstrous in a variety of media stories and novels like baum s oz books or gibson s neuromancer television series and feature films like the walking dead or edward scissorhands and myths and legends like beowulf and the loch ness monster in order to provide a closer understanding of not just who we are and who we have been but also who we believe we can be for better or worse
