km/h. The timing chain is a critical component of the engine, and it is essential to check it regularly. If the timing chain is worn, it can cause the engine to run poorly, lose power, and even stall. It is recommended to replace the timing chain every 100,000 miles or every 10 years, whichever comes first. The timing chain is a complex system, and it is important to have it inspected by a qualified mechanic.
