narrative poetry is distinguished from other types of verse in that it aims to relate a connected series of events and therefore deals primarily with actions rather than with thoughts or emotions this definition however simple as it appears to be in theory is often difficult to apply as a test because other matter is blended with the pure narrative in any story where the situation is made prominent description may be required to make clear the scene and explain movements to the reader thus enoch arden begins with a word picture of a sea coast town again it is often necessary to analyze the motives which actuate certain characters and so it becomes necessary to introduce exposition of some sort into the plot the poems in this collection serve to enforce the lesson that the four standard rhetorical forms—narration description exposition and argumentation—are constantly being combined and welded in a complicated way in cases where these various literary elements are apparently in a tangle a classification if it be made at all must be based on the design of the poem as a whole and the emphasis and proportion given to the respective elements by the author if the stress is laid on the recounting of the events which make up a unified action and if the other factors are made subordinate and subsidiary to this end then the poem in question belongs to the narrative group the antiquity of the narrative as a form of literature is undisputed indeed it has been established with a reasonable degree of certainty that poetry in its very beginnings was narrative and in its primitive state must have been a sort of rude rhythmical chant originated and participated in by the tribe as a whole and telling of the exploits of gods or legendary heroes in the course of time there arose the minstrel who acting first as chorus leader became eventually the representative of the tribe and its own special singer when we reach a somewhat more advanced stage of civilization we find regularly appointed bards reciting their lays in the hall of the chieftain or urging on the warriors to battle with rehearsals of past victories originally these bards simply repeated the old oral traditions handed down as common property but the opportunity for the display of individual genius soon induced them to try variations on the current themes and to compose versions of their own with this advance of individualism poetry became gradually more complex various elements lyrical descriptive and dramatic assumed some prominence and tended to develop separate forms this differentiation however did not impair the vigor of the story telling spirit and a constant succession of narrative poems down to the present day evidences how productive and characteristic a feature of our literature this form has been chinese narrative poetry brings a new perspective to some of china's best loved and most influential poems including ts'ai yen's poem of affliction po chu yi's song of everlasting sorrow and wei chuang's recently discovered song of the lady of ch'in composed in the shih form during the late han six dynasties and t'ang periods these poems stand out as masterworks of narrative art yet paradoxically their narrative qualities have been little recognized or explored in either traditional chinese or modern western scholarship the reason for this neglect is that western literary traditions acknowledge their origins in epic poetry and thus take narrative for granted but the chinese tradition is fundamentally based on lyric and does not admit of a separate category for narrative poetry drawing on both classical chinese critical works and the most recent western contributions to the theory of narrative levy shows how narrative elements developed out of the lyrical conventions of shih in doing so she accomplishes a double purpose guiding the modern reader to an understanding of the nature of narrative in chinese poetry and shedding light on the ways in which chinese poets adapted the devices of lyric to the needs of a completely different expressive mode students of chinese literature will welcome this pathbreaking study but chinese narrative poetry will interest other scholars as well because it addresses questions of crucial importance for literary theory and comparative literature particularly the central issue of the applicability of western critical concepts to non western literature and culture
