an addition to the studies in language testing series this volume provides an overview of english language testing over the last century with coverage of key theoretical and practical aspects of the assessment of reading listening writing and speaking skills it includes examples of the cambridge english exams old and new and is the first volume to describe in a systematic way the different theoretical influences which have shaped the development of the constructs underlying cambridge english exams in the last 100 years the book contains contributions from practitioners and theoreticians who explore the pronunciation of english from various perspectives phonetic phonological psycholinguistic and sociolinguistic in accordance with the unifying theme of the volume individual contributions investigate the characteristics of a foreign accent its production and perception study the development of methods and techniques in pronunciation teaching evaluate their use in classroom materials and in the classroom itself and investigate the conditions for second language learning and teaching from the perspective of learners and teachers the book offers a unique combination of a scholarly research with practical applications inspired over the years by the work of professor włodzimierz sobkowiak who has researched pronunciation teaching and pioneered technology oriented corpus based approaches to the study of english pronunciation in poland this volume examines the nature of second language listening proficiency and how it can be assessed the book highlights the need for test developers to provide a clear explication of the ability constructs which underpin the tests they offer in the public domain this is increasingly necessary if claims of the validity of test score interpretation and use are to be supported both logically and with empirical evidence
