this book explores the tradition of the science of man in french medicine of the era 1750 1850 focusing on controversies about the nature of the physical moral relation and their effects on the role of medicine in french society its chief purpose is to recover the history of a holistic tradition in french medicine that has been neglected because it lay outside the mainstream themes of modern medicine which include experimental reductionist and localistic conceptions of health and disease professor williams also challenges existing historiography which holds that the anthropological approach to medicine was a short term by product of the leftist politics of the french revolution this work argues instead that the medical science of man long outlived the revolution that it spanned traditional ideological divisions and that it reflected the shared aim of french physicians whatever their politics to claim broad cultural authority in french society maine de biran s work has had an enormous influence on the development of french philosophy henri bergson called him the greatest french metaphysician since descartes and malebranche jules lachelier referred to him as the french kant and royer collard called him simply the master of us all and yet the philosopher and his work remain unknown to many english speaking readers from ravaisson and bergson through to the phenomenology of major figures such as maurice merleau ponty michel henry and paul ricoeur biran s influence is evident and acknowledged as a major contribution the notion of corps propre so important to phenomenology in the twentieth century originates in his thought his work also had a huge impact on the distinction between the virtual and the actual as well as the concepts of effort and puissance enormously important to the development of deleuze s and foucault s work this volume the first english translation of maine de biran in nearly a century introduces anglophone readers to the work of this seminal thinker the relationship between the physical and the moral in man is an expression of biran s mature spiritualism and

~~this book was originally published in 1832 dr james philips kay later sir james kay shuttleworth~~ studied medicine in edinburgh and then began to practise in manchester where he acquired a wide knowledge of working class conditions and diseases in 1831 2 he acted as secretary to the manchester board of health which was set up to combat the threatened cholera epidemic and it is thanks in part to the devoted labours of kay and his colleagues that the epidemic in manchester was less severe than in other cities this vividly written pamphlet embodies the fruits of kay shuttleworth s experiences in the capital of the cotton kingdom he describes the newly set up boards of health investigatings into the state of manchester s poor and enumerates the causes of their physical depression with all its attendant moral degradation and predisposition to disease as well as supplying statistics for pauperism crime and mortality shuttleworth provides suggestions for improving working class conditions this is the best known of all the literature produced about workers ocnditions in the early nineteenth century and is a work which has been widely quoted and used by both economic and social historians we live in an age in which the reflecting portion of mankind are much addicted to the contemplation of the works of nature it is the object of the author in this treatise to interrogate nature with the view of making her utter her voice in answer to some of the most important questions which the inquiring spirit of man can put to guard against misapprehension he wishes it to be understood that he treats in this book of the method of the divine government in the world rather than in the church of the ordinary providence of god rather than his extraordinary dealings

~~this book investigates moral metaphors in english and chinese applying conceptual metaphor~~ theory to a comparative study of the linguistic manifestation of the moral metaphor system rooted in the domains of bodily and physical experience ning yu sheds light on the metaphorical nature of moral cognition and how it is systematically manifested in language and explores the potential commonalities that define moral cognition in general as well as the differences that characterize distinct cultures the work investigates moral cognition at the cultural level as reflected in language based on linguistic evidence from both english and chinese and to a limited extent multimodal evidence from the corresponding cultures the moral metaphor system is taken to consist of three major subsystems referred to as physical visual and spatial these subsystems are clusters of conceptual metaphors whose source concepts are from domains of embodied experiences in the physical world and which are formulated in contrastive categories with bipolar values for the target concepts of moral and immoral the study is characterized by two keywords system and systematicity the former refers to the fact that metaphors conceptual and linguistic are connected within networks and the latter to the need for those metaphors to be studied in such networks
