How to Write a Proposal That's Accepted Every Time* 1999

the word strategy is from the greek word strategos meaning an army general for you to do proper research you must think like the military intelligence paying much attention to details because in warfare life death civilization and even the future of a nation depend on it and in this case your money depends on it borrowing from the philosophy of one of the greatest military general and philosophers of all time sun tzu in his book the art of war listed out means of doing a thorough and detailed assessment to ensure victory in battle do not forget in this case you landing the financing now i am going to use the things he taught literally in his time where civilization depended on warfare as metaphors in these times of negotiation yet filled with clashes of interest and harsh competition so in the next pages of this book i would have you think like a military general but act like a businessman not difficult right a good military general in his assessment for warfare must consider the way the weather the terrain the leadership and the discipline not only of the enemy troop but of his army sun tzu the terrain place of combat reality a good general also considers the best terrains to place his fight or he checks the terrain where a fight would hold and prepare his troop for it would it be in an open field a valley rocky plain swampy area forest sea whatever the case maybe he must ascertain the terrain for the fight to prepare his soldiers for what to expect and convert the forces of nature to weapons on their side a general ignorant of the terrain may find himself trying to adapt to a terrain first rather than winning and will lose the battle to his more prepared foe so beyond the maps and the compasses the general must be conversant with the terrain of the clash secondly the general may not necessarily be at the forefront he can take a step backward and have a bird s eye view of the terrain to know how to swing everything to his advantage now in your strategic research you must understudy your client or investor be it a business person or an organization sometimes the map differs from the actual terrain so what you read in books and statistics may not suffice engage the people statistics only makes sense when you can relate it with day to day activities find a spy an insider and get the answers you need you need to get first hand information about the organization you seek to get investment from also you must learn to also step back and see the big picture most times it might not exactly be about your expertise you can step back to see reasons why the funds may not be given to you and tackle them they could be government and economic policies et cetera all i am just saying is sometimes you need to step back and look at other areas that have anything to do with that field of business and see if there is anything that can affect the possibility of you getting the funds you desire stepping back might need the help of other experts in other areas who should be a part of your team but make sure your overview is holistic so that nothing falls into your scotoma the leadership merging tangible and intangible factors the general sets the tone for speed chain of command fluidity or rigidity in navigation and all kinds of maneuvers that will get them the victory mostly his ability to make these decisions depends on his ability to marry the tangible factors and the intangible factors his leadership is what creates the morale of his army and morale in the soul is worth more than swords at hand morale is the live blood of the army so his combination of resources and instincts reality and his masterfully crafted words to create bliss of raging emotions in the battlefield can be a deciding factor for victory antibiotics will soon no longer be able to cure common illnesses such as strep throat sinusitis and middle ear infections as they have done for the last 60 years antibiotic resistant bacteria are increasing at a much faster rate than new antibiotics to treat them are being developed the prescription of antibiotics for viral illnesses is a key cause of increasing bacterial resistance despite this fact many children continue to receive antibiotics unnecessarily for the treatment of viral upper respiratory tract infections why do american physicians continue to prescribe inappropriately given the high social stakes of this action the answer appears to lie in the fundamentally social nature of medical practice physicians do not prescribe as the result of a clinical algorithm but prescribe in the context of a conversation with a parent and a child thus physicians have a classic social dilemma which pits individual parents and children against a greater social good this book examines parent physician conversations in detail showing how parents put pressure on doctors in largely covert ways for instance in specific communication practices for explaining why they have brought their child to the doctor or answering a history taking question this book also shows how physicians yield to this seemingly subtle pressure evidencing that apparently small differences in wording have important consequences for diagnosis and treatment recommendations following parents use of these interactional practices physicians are more likely to make concessions alter their diagnosis or alter their treatment recommendation this book also shows how small changes in the way physicians present their findings and recommendations can decrease parent pressure for antibiotics this book carefully documents the important and observable link between micro social interaction and macro public health domains
