United States Census of Agriculture, 1964 1967 the determination of when how often and with whom an animal breeds is moving rapidly away from evolutionary pressures and towards human purposes these include the breeding of around 50 billion mammals and birds for food production annually the breeding of pedigree dogs and cats racing dogs and horses specialised laboratory animal strains and the use of reproductive science to conserve endangered species or breeds and to limit unwanted populations of pests and non native species but the ethics and sustainability of this takeover of animals reproductive lives have been insufficiently examined by either professionals or the public this book discusses the methods the motivations and the consequences of human intervention in animal breeding in terms of animal health behaviour and well being it explores where we are now and the choices ahead and looks to a future where we have more respect for animals as sentient beings and where we could loosen the reins of reproductive control

Revised Edition of Laws Applicable to the United States Department of Agriculture, 1945 1945 the roman era in britain produced a time of population movement within its borders one such group traveled from north west of the island to the relative peaceful area around the city of litchfield in the heart of england their deep rooted beliefs were suppressed with the arrival of christianity and its absolute doctrines although forced to conform some inhabitants still remembered and practiced certain ways regarding the old days their focus centered on an old tree rumored to have magical powers regarding their lives and predicting future events this great tree was referred to as the druid tree and it became a customary visiting place for travelers and locals as each generation passed beneath its limbs so the stories became legends for the ancients to pass down to other generations each era within english history has at least one story connecting local inhabitants with the great tree and its stones oh yes and then there were the stones

1969 Census of Agriculture: General report. 1 v. in 9 1972 eco towers introduces readers to groundbreaking designs most progressive projects and innovative ways of thinking about a new generation of green skyscrapers that could provide solutions to crises the world faces today including climate change depleting resources deteriorating ecology population increase decreasing food supply urban heat island effect pollution deforestation and more the book suggests that the eco tower culminates the cultural and technological evolutions of the 21st century by building and improving on the experiences of earlier designs of skyscrapers and philosophies particularly green sustainable and ecological it argues that the true green skyscraper is the one that engages successfully with its larger urban context by establishing symbiotic relationships with the social economic and environmental aspects since tall buildings are becoming larger and taller serving greater number of people and exerting higher demand on the environment and existing infrastructure any improvements in their design and construction will significantly enhance urban conditions the book elucidates how green skyscrapers better serve tenants mitigate environmental impacts and improve integration with the city infrastructure it explains how skyscrapers long life cycle offers the greatest justifications for recycling precious resources and makes it a worthwhile to employ green features in constructing new skyscrapers and retrofitting existing ones subsequently the book explores new designs that are employing cutting edge green technologies at a grand scale including water saving technologies solar panels helical wind turbines sunlight sensing led lights rainwater catchment systems graywater and blackwater recycling systems seawater powered air conditioning and the like in the future new building materials and smart technologies will continue to offer innovative design approaches to sustainable tall buildings with new aesthetics referred to as eco iconic skyscrapers

Defense-housing and Defense Public-works Statutes of the United States and Provisions of Other Laws and Executive Documents Relating to the Administration of Such Statutes, September 15, 1941 1941 considering that orkney is a group of relatively small islands lying off the northeast coast of the scottish mainland its wealth of neolithic archaeology is truly extraordinary an assortment of houses chambered cairns stone circles standing stones and passage graves provides an unusually comprehensive range of archaeological and architectural contexts yet in the early 1990s there was a noticeable imbalance between 4th and 3rd millennium cal bc evidence with house structures and villages being well represented in the latter but minimally in the former as elsewhere in the British Isles the archaeological visibility of the 4th millennium cal bc in Orkney tends to be dominated by the monumental presence of chambered cairns or tombs in the 1970s Claude Lévi-Strauss conceived of a form of social organization based upon the house sociétés à maisons in order to provide a classification for social groups that appeared not to conform to established anthropological kinship structures in this approach the anchor point is the house understood as a conceptual resource that is a consequence of a strategy of constructing and legitimizing identities under ever shifting social conditions drawing on the results of an extensive program of fieldwork in the Bay of Firth mainland Orkney the text explores the idea that the physical appearance of the house is a potent resource for materializing the dichotomous alliance and descent principles apparent in the archaeological evidence for the early and later Neolithic of Orkney it argues that some of the insights made by Lévi-Strauss in his basic formulation of sociétés à maisons are extremely relevant to interpreting the archaeological evidence and providing the parameters for a social narrative of the material changes occurring in Orkney between the 4th and 2nd millennia cal bc the major excavations undertaken during the Cuween Wideford landscape project provided an unprecedented depth and variety of evidence for Neolithic occupation bridging the gap between domestic and ceremonial architecture and form exploring the transition from wood to stone and relationships between the living and the dead and the role of material culture the results are described and discussed in detail here enabling tracing of the development and fragmentation of sociétés à maisons over a 1500 year period of northern Isles prehistory
