Staff Directory - Cornell University 1996

this paper discusses the democratic republic of the congo s staff monitored program and request for disbursement under the rapid credit facility the economic environment remains challenging and vulnerable to shocks real gross domestic product growth is projected to decelerate to 4.5 percent in 2019 from 5.8 percent in 2018. The recent fall in commodity prices, new spending initiatives, and looser spending oversight during the political transition period have led to a weaker fiscal position, mostly financed by the central bank. In this context, international reserves have fallen to critically low levels, creating urgent balance of payment needs. The new government is committed to implementing measures and reforms that would strengthen macroeconomic stability, reinforce international reserves, address issues related to poor governance, a difficult business environment, and pervasive poverty. Authorities also intend to boost domestic revenue by restoring the functioning of the value added tax and enforcing the personal income tax, while improving mining revenue forecasting. In addition, the government intends to introduce strict spending caps, increase the effectiveness of monetary policy, and foster inclusive growth and private sector development, including through infrastructure projects and free basic education.

This paper presents 2019 Article IV Consultation with the Republic of Moldova and its Sixth Reviews under the Extended Credit Facility and Extended Fund Facility Arrangements. Moldova's economic growth remained solid in the first three quarters of 2019, with output expanding nearly 5 percent, supported by strong domestic demand. The three-year program has been broadly successful in achieving its objectives. Comprehensive reforms have rehabilitated the banking system and strengthened financial sector governance, entrenching macrofinancial stability. Prudent and well-coordinated policies are needed to safeguard the progress achieved. Decisive governance and institutional reforms are necessary for faster, sustainable, and inclusive growth. Safeguarding central bank independence is a priority. The inflation targeting regime remains appropriate, but additional efforts are needed to improve policy credibility, promote exchange rate flexibility, and disincentivize foreign currency intermediation. Widespread governance and institutional vulnerabilities are major impediments to accelerating income convergence. Addressing these could have significant growth dividends through faster capital accumulation, reduced labor and human capital headwinds from emigration, and higher productivity.

this paper discusses benin s fifth review under the extended credit facility arrangement request for extension and request for modification of performance criteria program implementation continues to be very satisfactory the macroeconomic and structural policies outlined by the authorities are adequate to pursue the program s objectives and risks to program implementation are deemed manageable benin s economic performance remains strong despite a less supportive external environment and the border closure with nigeria the significant increase in the share of external debt in total debt in the past two years warrants caution the recent debt reprofiling operation and the eurobond issuance have contributed to lowering borrowing costs diversifying the financing structure and extending debt maturity however these operations can also generate new vulnerabilities that will need to be mitigated through an enhanced debt management strategy and continued capacity improvements at the debt management office

County Business Patterns, Ohio 1989

this 2019 article iv consultation highlights that guyana s economic growth strengthened in 2018 with broad based expansion across all major sectors the medium term prospects are very favorable as oil production is on schedule to begin in early 2020 economic growth is projected at 4.4 percent in 2019 extending the broad based expansion across all major sectors policies to fortify the fiscal policy framework to ensure effective use of the new found oil wealth develop the necessary infrastructure for a suitable monetary policy framework that facilitates adjustment to oil price shocks while maintaining price stability and reforms to enhance competitiveness promote economic diversification strengthen governance and achieve inclusiveness the passage of the natural resource fund legislation is a critical step toward effective management of guyana s natural resource wealth in order to ensure that fiscal discipline is maintained and spending ramps up at a pace in line with absorptive capacity the fiscal framework should be enhanced to prevent deficits
