frantisek Ábel explores one of the topical issues of paul's theology namely the role and influence of the jewish pseudo epigraphs literature written during greek and early roman periods 4th century bce to the 2nd century ce on paul's theological thinking within this corpus the idea of eschatological concepts such as the concept regarding the coming of the messiah and the last judgment in particular arises frequently it is similar in the case of the psalms of solomon with the last judgment as the main topic of this pseudepigraphon through close analysis and exploration of particular parts of this work the author proposes that this deuterocanonical writing could form a considerable background for the proper understanding of paul's messianic ethics from this point of view paul's teaching on justification should be understood as one that is reflective of god's grace while at the same time expressing faith and deeds as necessary for salvation euichang kim focuses upon the phrase the fear of god drawn from 2 corinthians exhortation to reconcile with god as opposed to these words appearing from no particular source kim points to the wider contexts of old testament passages quoted by paul and demonstrates that god's eschatological promises in particular his coming judgment his promise to redeem his people and the prospect of a new covenant are intertwined with this motif of fear beginning with an analysis of the meaning of fear in both the old testament and the new kim proceeds to the context of fear within 2 corinthians scripture the writings of second temple judaism and the very eschatology of paul suggesting that it stems from an awareness of god's judgment to come and serves to motivate righteous behavior kim finally argues that in the context of 2 corinthians the fear of god functions as the proper response to god's saving acts in christ and provides motivation for believers to pursue a holy life in anticipation of the eschatological judgment to come
