Opinion Dynamics and the Evolution of Social Power in Social Networks

this book uses rigorous mathematical analysis to advance opinion dynamics models for social networks in three major directions first a novel model is proposed to capture how a discrepancy between an individual's private and expressed opinions can develop due to social pressures that arise in group situations or through extremists deliberately shaping public opinion detailed theoretical analysis of the final opinion distribution is followed by use of the model to study asch's seminal experiments on conformity and the phenomenon of pluralistic ignorance second the deGroot friedkin model for evolution of an individual's social power self confidence is developed in a number of directions the key result establishes that an individual's initial social power is forgotten exponentially fast even when the network changes over time eventually an individual's social power depends only on the changing network structure last a model for the simultaneous discussion of multiple logically interdependent topics is proposed to ensure that a consensus across the opinions of all individuals is achieved it turns out that the interpersonal interactions must be weaker than an individual's introspective cognitive process for establishing logical consistency among the topics otherwise the individual may experience cognitive overload and the opinion system becomes unstable conclusions of interest to control engineers social scientists and researchers from other relevant disciplines are discussed throughout the thesis with support from both social science and control literature
