historic mandela speeches over the course of american political history political elites and organizations have often updated their political communications strategies in order to achieve longstanding political communication goals in more efficient or effective ways but why do successful innovations occur when they do and what motivates political actors to make choices about how to innovate their communication tactics covering over 300 years of political communication innovations ben epstein shows how this process of change happens and why to do this epstein following an interdisciplinary approach proposes a new model called the political communication cycle that accounts for the technological behavioral and political factors that lead to revolutionary political communication changes over time these changes at least the successful ones have been far from gradual as long periods of relatively stable political communication activities have been disrupted by brief periods of dramatic and permanent transformation these transformations are driven by political actors and organizations and tend to follow predictable patterns epstein moves beyond the technological determinism that characterizes communication history scholarship and the medium specific focus of much political communication work the book identifies the political communication revolutions that have in the united states led to four relatively stable political communication orders over history the elite mass broadcast and the current information orders it identifies and tests three phases of each revolutionary cycle ultimately sketching possible paths for the future the only constant is change offers readers and scholars a model and vocabulary to compare political communication changes across time and between different types of political organizations this provides greater understanding of where we are currently in the recurring political communication cycle and where we might be headed ruth first 1987 a year in which 164 people were executed two years later the last man went to the gallows in pretoria after more than four thousand hangings that century the novel portrays legal execution in unprecedented detail revealing its devastating impact on all those involved people across the globe engage in social and solidarity economics to help themselves their community and society on their own terms community economies in the global south examines how people who conscientiously organize rotating savings and credit associations roscas bring positive changes to their own lives as well as others roscas are a long established and well documented practice especially those organized by women of colour members make regular deposits to a fund as a savings that is then given in whole or in part to each member in turn based on group economics this book spotlights women in latin america the caribbean africa and asia who organize and use these associations composed of ordinary people belonging to similar class origins who decide jointly on the rules to suit the interests of their members the case studies show how they vary greatly across countries in the global south demonstrating that roscas are living proof that diverse community economies do exist and have been around for a very long time the contributors recount stories of the self help activism and perseverance of racialized people in order to push for ethical community focused business and to hold onto local knowledge grounded theory and lived experience reducing the need to rely on external funding as people find ways to finance sustainable debt free business ventures the first collection on this topic edited by two women of colour with roots in the global south this volume is a rallying call to other scholar activists to study and report on how racialized people come together pool goods and diversify business in the global south leave now or die those words or ones just as ominous have echoed through the past hundred years of american history heralding a very unnatural disaster a wave of racial cleansing that wiped out or drove away black populations from counties across the nation while we have long known about horrific episodes of lynching in the south this story of racial cleansing has remained almost entirely unknown these expulsions always swift and often violent were extraordinarily widespread in the period between reconstruction and the depression era in the heart of the midwest and the deep south whites rose up in rage fear and resentment to lash out at local blacks they burned and killed indiscriminately sweeping entire counties clear of blacks to make them racially pure many of these counties remain virtually all white to this day in buried in the bitter waters pulitzer prize winning journalist elliot jaspin exposes a deeply shameful chapter in the nation's history and one that continues to shape the geography of race in america more than one third of the population of the united states now lives in the south a region where politics race relations and the economy have changed dramatically since world war ii yet historians and journalists continue to disagree over whether the modern south is dominating deviating from or converging with the rest of the nation has the time come to declare the end of southern history and how do the stories of american history change if the south is no longer seen as a region apart as the conservative counterpoint to a liberal national ideal the myth of southern exceptionalism challenges the idea of southern distinctiveness in order to offer a new way of thinking about modern american history for too long the belief in an exceptional south has encouraged distortions and generalizations about the nation's otherwise liberal traditions especially by compartmentalizing themes of racism segregation and political conservatism in one section of the country this volume dismantles popular binaries of de facto versus de jure segregation red state conservatism versus blue state liberalism the south versus the north to rewrite the history of region and nation alike matthew lassiter and joseph crespino present thirteen essays framed by their provocative introduction that reinterpret major topics such as the civil rights movement in the south and the north the relationship between conservative backlash and liberal reform throughout the country the rise of the religious right as a national phenomenon the emergence of the metropolitan sunbelt and increasing suburban diversity in a multiracial new south by writing american history across regional borders this volume spends as much time outside as inside the traditional boundaries of the south moving from mississippi to new york city from southern california to south carolina from mexico to atlanta from hollywood to the newport folk festival and from the pentagon to the attica prison rebellion essays make a change in
