between the 1970s and the 1990s american journalists began telling the news by telling stories they borrowed narrative techniques transforming sources into characters events into plots and their own work from stenography to anthropology this was more than a change in style it was a change in substance a paradigmatic shift in terms of what constituted news and how it was being told it was a turn toward narrative journalism and a new culture of news propelled by the storytelling movement thomas schmidt analyzes the expansion of narrative journalism and the corresponding institutional changes in the american newspaper industry in the last quarter of the twentieth century in doing so he offers the first institutionally situated history of narrative journalism s evolution from the new journalism of the 1960s to long form this book explores della cruscan poetry in the late eighteenth century literary scene a sociable ornate and deeply theatrical type of poetry della cruscanism was associated with writers like robert merry mary robinson and hannah cowley while merry is the poet most commonly associated with the della cruscan school this book argues that della cruscanism was a movement dominated by female poets and that this was one of the key reasons for the later disavowal and downgrading of its poetic accomplishments it offers a close examination of these women writers and their role in shaping the poetic culture of the fashionable newspaper in doing so this study offers the first account of the feminization of the fashionable newspaper and of popular literary culture in the first years of the eighteenth century

Failing Newspaper Act

excerpt from a decade in the history of newspaper libel a paper read at the annual meeting of the canadian press association held at ottawa march 6th 7th 1892 and published by the association for general circulation up to the year 188 the law of newspaper libel remained as it had been for a long period of years in that year the first notable amendments were made it will be exactly ten years on the tenth day of the present month of march since the newspaper libel act of ontario was passed five years later on the twenty third day of april 1887 another act respecting the law of libel was passed slightly amending the previous act and applying mainly to newspapers these two acts have been incorporated in the general act relating to libel in the revised statutes of ontario 1887 on the twenty second day of may of the following year 1888 an act was passed by the dominion parliament amending the law of criminal libel in some important particulars during the last session of the dominion parliament a bill relating to the criminal law of canada minister of justice and laid over to the present session this measure of which the sections relating to defamatory libel form but a small part is one of great and far reaching importance it aims at codifying the whole criminal law of the dominion and is in this respect a new and interesting departure in legislation it is founded upon and adapted from the draft criminal code proposed by the royal commission in england in 1879 the criminal law bill introduced into the british parliament in 1880 and the revised statutes of canada 1886 the sections of the draft bill which codify the law of libel are eighteen in number there are of course other sections which bear directly or indirectly upon libel as a criminal offence they are all of vital moment to journalists whether newspaper publishers or newspaper writers they are of supreme consequence also to the commonwealth because they affect the liberty of the subject and what journalists as a body will prize even more the liberty of the press as an organ of public opinion from this brief statement it will be seen that the past decade has been a memorable one in the history of newspaper libel ve in saying that since the passage of lord campbell's act in the early part of the present reign 6 and 7 vict c which materially extended the press there has been no period more fruitful in amendments and on the whole salutary amendments of the law than that which commencing in 1882 will close with the present year it will be impossible to discuss all these amendments in the present thesis in a paper which the writer had the honour of reading at the winter meeting of the association held at toronto in 1889 and which was afterwards published amongst the transactions of the association the amendments of the criminal law of libel then just passed were fully reviewed some suggestions contained in that paper for a further improvement of the law along the lines of recent legislation in england may be worth considering at the present meeting especially in view of the revised criminal code which the minister will again bring before parliament the provisions of the ontario act of 1887 in regard to security for costs in libel actions against newspapers were also discussed by the writer in a paper which was published in the globe of 19th july 1890 it is proposed now to review as briefly as the importance of the subject will permit the other amendments of the law contained in the ontario acts of 1882 and 1887 the association will then have in something like a
