by far the majority of south african students get their schooling in a second language which means that our classrooms are multilingual this state of affairs is not exclusive to our country as can be seen in the many academic conferences on multilingual learning and teaching terms like translanguaging and biliteracy appear in many articles and books that discuss the role language in education what makes the multilingual nature of our south african classrooms challenging is the fact that many learners switch from one language of learning and teaching to another at various points in their school career from home language to english or afrikaans after the foundation phase from one language of learning and teaching to another when they move to new schools high school or tertiary institutions this book is an attempt to highlight the transitions from home to school from foundation to intermediate phase from primary to high school and from high school to tertiary institutions this book presents the results of a series of literacy experiments in ten niger congo languages representing four language families and spanning five countries it asks the research question to what extent does full tone marking contribute to oral reading fluency comprehension and writing accuracy and does that contribution vary from language to language one of the main findings is that the ethno literacy profile of the language community and the social profile of the individual are stronger predictors of reading and writing performance than are the linguistic and orthographic profiles of the language our data also suggest that full tone marking may be more beneficial for less educated readers and those with less experience of l1 literacy the book will bring practical help to linguists and literacy specialists in africa and beyond who are helping to develop orthographies for tone languages it will also be of interest to cognitive psychologists exploring the reading process and researchers investigating writing systems it is often interesting to know why an author chose to write a particular story first in order for me to explain this reason i need to tell you a little about my background i have worked as a teacher then as a child psychologist in schools and finally as a lecturer and professor of educational psychology in universities it is only since my retirement some twelve years ago that i had the time to start writing stories for both young children and older adolescents because of my professional background and particular interest in reading development all my published short stories and novels have an underlying purpose and that purpose is to bring to young people reading material that is not only interesting and that they can relate to their personal lives but also carries with it something that could be useful in their psychological development all of my three novels in this xlibris corporation series see the relevant titles of the other two novels below have an underlying developmental theme and purpose and this is to provide stories that i hope may help young people deal with the painful feelings and practical difficulties that always have to be faced when someone has lost a loved one perhaps even more important each of the stories also tells in its own way how the main character overcomes and rises above his or her grief and difficulties in each case this recovery comes not only from the help and support of one or more friends relatives neighbours and teachers but also significantly from the determination and courage of each of the main characters in order to help you relate these important elements to your own life and perhaps to the lives of other young people whom you may know i have added two short sections at the end of each book the first provides you with a number of questions to think about and the second with a few carefully chosen activities for you to undertake even though it may take a little effort please follow through on both of the above elements as they will most definitely help you get the most out of each story second i believe that an author of any fictional story needs to be personally familiar with the place as well as the language and culture of the people who live there without this element the story will simply not feel authentic or real to any reader wherever they happen to live in the world my hope again is that this will be true for you in each of my three novels i have a list at the end of the novel of the english translations and a guide to the pronunciation of those important names words and phrases in the indigenous languages that i have chosen to use in the respective novels i think this may contribute to the authenticity of the stories as you read them i hope so the titles of my other two novels in this xlibris corporation series are i am thabeka and woza thabo african language writing is in crisis the conditions under which african writing developed in the past only remotely similar to those of western models resulted in an inability of eurocentric literary models to explore the hermeneutic world of african language poetics inherited from the oral and the modern worlds existing modes of criticism in the study of this literary tradition are often unsuited for a nuanced understanding of the intrinsic and extrinsic aspects at play in the composition production and reading of these literatures in african language literatures innocencia jabulisile mhlambi charts new directions in the study of african language literatures generally and isizulu fiction in particular by proposing that african popular arts and culture models be considered as a logical solution to current debates and challenges mhlambi shows how the popular arts and culture approach brings into relationship the oral and written forms the local and the international and elitist and popular genres and locates and places the resultant emerging eclectic culture into its socio historical context she uses this theoretical approach to explore in a wide range of cultural products what matters or what is of interest to the people irrespective of social hierarchies and predispositions it is her contention that in profound ways the african language literary tradition evinces diversity complexity and fluidity and that this should be seen as an invitation to look at systems of meaning which do not hide their connections with the facts of power and material life
