a comprehensive investigation of household life during the upper paleolithic era what was home and family like in paleolithic europe how did mobile hunter gatherer families live work and play together in the fourteenth millennium bp what were the functional and spatial constraints and markers of their domesticity the processes that create and sustain a household despite the long recognized absence of comprehensive archaeological data on such ancient homes and hearths the archaeologists in this volume begin unraveling the domesticity of the upper paleolithic by drawing on both an immense trove of new material evidence and comparative site data and a range of incisive and illuminating ethnographic analogies theoretical models and simulations five late magdalenian sites from the paris basin and one later azilian site provide striking evidence of well preserved camps of short duration situated on valley bottoms and buried by gentle floods of particular interest and value is the site of verberie rich in lithic tools faunal remains hearths and other indicators of spatial organization which has been excavated continuously for twenty six years by the same director and provides an unparalleled source of information on paleolithic domesticity the first group of essays and reports look at the technology and demographic evidences of domesticity the second set seeks clues to the spatial patterning of paleolithic households while the final essays draw on ethnographic analogies to reconstruct and interpret gendered divisions of labor perishable technologies and other activities not directly recognizable from archaeological remains the magdalenian household should be required reading for anyone with an interest in upper palaeolithic behaviour and the evolution of the use of space antiquity because of the excellent syntheses of especially the long term high quality research at verberie this book should be in the collections of all institutions with serious interests in upper paleolithic prehistory journal of anthropological research
