life paint and passion is a deeply involving approach to using the creative process as a tool for self discovery with vibrant and contagious enthusiasm the authors liberate the reader s urge to create freely and spontaneously as a painter or an artist in another medium purely for the process of exploration not for result with eloquence and simplicity the authors encourage the reader to journey inward toward his or her authentic self and discover the unique intuition awaiting there it is this intuition that provides all the tools the reader needs to crumble the barrier between the innermost self and its uncensored manifestation through lively interviews with students the authors explore painting as a practice that facilitates the ecstasy of unfettered expression with simple brushes a few dishes of paint and this book the reader will be able to coax the hidden self out of the heart and onto a paper life paint and passion is the result of nearly thirty years of intensive work with the painting process it provides powerful insights into the act of creation a solid base for facing and transcending creative blocks and brings fresh perceptions and healing to life cézanne s watercolors exhibit not only kaleidoscopic arrays of translucent color but also very light graphite pencil lines that contrast strikingly with the soft watery touches of color these drawn lines have been largely overlooked in previous studies of cézanne s watercolors in this ravishing book matthew simms argues that it was the dialogue between drawing and painting the movement between the pencil and the paintbrush that attracted cézanne to watercolor watercolor allowed cézanne to express what he termed his sensations in two distinct modes that become a record of his shifting and spontaneous responses to his subject combining close visual analysis and examination of historical context simms focuses on the counterpoint of drawing and color in cézanne s watercolors over the course of his career and as viewed in relation to his oil paintings more than a tool for sketching or preparing for oil paintings simms contends watercolor was a unique means of expression in its own right that allowed cézanne to combine in one place the two otherwise opposed mediums of drawing and painting nature communicates with men and enables them to communicate among themselves through languages known to the senses and sensibilities the elements and principles of composition for drawing and painting is an analysis of nature s visual language and how the masters have employed it in painting the text begins by examining the components of nature s visual language and how they communicate content and form content is visual intellectual and emotional meaning form is aesthetic meaning content is expressed abstractly and realistically through five visual elements form is expressed aesthetically through seven types of structural relationships the perception interpretation and judgment of content and form are carried out by an observer s sensibilities that which conforms to a sensibility s preferences is judged as pleasant and that which does not is judged as unpleasant what greatly pleases a sensibility is regarded by it as beautiful thus we find there are visual intellectual emotional and aesthetic types of beauty though sensibilities are somewhat genetically predisposed they are largely the product of experience their development and intentional molding are examined in detail having come to an understanding of visual communication the purpose of painting is next investigated it is to visually communicate one s perceptions thoughts and emotions in a thematic and poetic manner its purpose is to please the observer s aesthetic sensibility while affecting his visual intellectual and emotional sensibilities in an intended manner painting serves the same purpose as music dance and poetry but employs a different language after painting's language and purpose are made clear the principles and practices of composition are examined composition employs the visual elements and natural laws in a manner that poetically expresses a theme and mood it controls how an observer enters and exits a painting and the order and importance of what he sees on his visual journey through it the intent of composition is to cause the observer to see think and feel what the painter wants him to see think and feel the content of a composition does not necessarily have to please an observer but the form in which it is presented must be poetic that is above all else a naturalistic painting should be aesthetically beautiful at first glance a casual observer might assume that norman lundin's recent paintings are about things that would be a mistake instead silence and space form a void that is shaped and manipulated by the things that displace it and defined by the light and atmosphere captured in its gravitational field this void is the true subject of lundin s paintings lundin s fascination with still life landscape and compositional integrity reaches its peak in a series of paintings depicting objects arranged along a shelf in front of mullioned windows that allow glimpses of a landscape beyond this volume includes an interview with the artist and illustrates works ranging from 1973 to 2006
