Community Participation in China 1949 through extensive neighborhood interviews and a compelling assessment of the problems of unraveling communities in urban america harold mcdougall reveals how in sections of baltimore a new community is developing relying more on vernacular culture personal networking and mutual support than on private wealth or public subsidy the communities of black baltimore provide an example of self help and civic action that could and should be occurring in other inner city areas in this political history of old west baltimore mcdougall describes how base communities small peer groups that share similar views circumstances and objectives have helped neighborhoods respond to the failure of both government and the market to create conditions for a decent quality of life for all arguing for the primacy of church leadership within the black community the author describes how these small flexible groups are creating the foundation of what he calls a new community where community spirited organizers clergy public interest advocates business people and government workers interact and build relationships through which baltimore s urban agenda is being developed

Community Participation 2020-08-04 drawing on the tools of game design to fix democracy anyone who has ever been to a public hearing or community meeting would agree that participatory democracy can be boring hours of repetitive presentations alternately alarmist or complacent for or against accompanied by constant heckling often with no clear outcome or decision is this the best democracy can offer in making democracy fun josh lerner offers a novel solution for the sad state of our deliberative democracy the power of good game design what if public meetings featured competition and collaboration such as team challenges clear rules presented and modeled in multiple ways measurable progress such as scores and levels and engaging sounds and visuals these game mechanics would make meetings more effective and more enjoyable even fun lerner reports that institutions as diverse as the united nations the u s army and grassroots community groups are already using games and game like processes to encourage participation drawing on more than a decade of practical experience and extensive research he explains how games have been integrated into a variety of public programs in north and south america he offers rich stories of game techniques in action in children s councils social service programs and participatory budgeting and planning with these real world examples in mind lerner describes five kinds of games and twenty six game mechanics that are especially relevant for democracy he finds that when governments and organizations use games and design their programs to be more like games public participation becomes more attractive effective and transparent game design can make democracy fun and make it work
