Voila! 1 Teacher's Book

2004

in this book we demonstrate a mode of teacher education that is practical in a non technical sense and relies on dewey s notion of curriculum as the reconstruction of experience we present a curriculum that emerged through collaborative self reflection and seeks to reconstruct personal histories of schooling as four former preservice teachers and their instructor we engaged in jointly constructed autobiographical inquiry in order to generate data on our own past and on our current histories of teaching and learning we wanted to illuminate parts of our lives in schools that until now belonged to our normal and taken for granted past we did this in order to enjoy certain degrees of awareness and choice as to which of our living stories to reinforce and which to let run out in our classrooms today

for forty years scholars have had access to a vast array of documents that reveal the stages by which a few modest episodes grew into the vast and complex structure the world reveres as Marcel Proust's unique novel À la recherche du temps perdu although many soundings have been made in this corpus which comprises manuscript pages exercise books typescripts and publisher's proofs Anthony Pugh's study is the first attempt to provide a comprehensive view of the story that the documents reveal at least in the years before the outbreak of war in 1914 a crucial feature of the research is the rigorous establishment of the chronological sequence of the documents a task complicated by Proust's habit of returning to sketches already written amplifying them with extensive additions in the margins and on the facing pages often reorganizing them and finally reworking them in another form sometimes physically intercalating pages of the first version into the new one Anthony Pugh analyses with scrupulous care every document facing all the multi-faceted problems they present and showing why many solutions some of them widely accepted by Proust scholars have to be questioned it emerges from this investigation that however unsystematic Proust was in his method of composing there is an inner logic in the way he oscillates between writing new incidents and editing texts already extant now for the first time the whole story of the way in which À la recherche du temps perdu grew during the first six years of its gestation is told in full both in its general thrust and in its fine details

Proust's À la recherche du temps perdu is a hybrid a novel essay a capacious work of fiction containing a commonplace book it might as Roland Barthes has suggested be thought of as the product of profound and cherished indecision Proust's indecision between two styles of writing themoralistic and the fictive novelistic romanesque structure and science is an exploration of this indecision the shorter Proust Proust the moraliste is a prolific writer of maxims from the laws of the passions to the aesthetic manifesto of the temps retrouvé to the rapacious teeming fertile spawning exuberant luxuriant reflections on sexuality politics society yet these maxims whose grammarlays claim to timelessness are bound up in narrative the story of their evolution and disintegration Proust's moralizing exposes our affective relationship with law statements with authority and it is this question that engages À la recherche in an epistemological debate which crosses the boundaries between the two cultures art and science what might be called the epistemological alertness of Proust's text is explored at this interface between modernist science and literature
