the weather has always been a topic of conversation it is probably the most common dialogue between human beings we often fear the weather yet our apparent dread of it is puzzling since we generally adapt to it remarkably well the weather in the imagination investigates the theories scenarios and psychoses caused by climate these fall into three main categories anthropological and psychological historical and catastrophic the weather has long served as a means of explaining human diversity other people are different because they live under different skies climate has also been used to explain the dynamic of the historical process the rise of certain civilizations and the stagnation and regression of others catastrophe is also invoked in theories of the weather what could destroy a civilization or arouse the fear of humanity's total extinction more effectively than a climatic disaster the prototype of this kind of upheaval is the pre biblical flood one of the most gripping and influential myths the human imagination has ever produced lucian boia does not take sides in the current debates about climate he does not exaggerate or play down global warming and its consequences or try to forecast the weather of the future what he does tell is a story that runs parallel with the true story of climate and its future the story of a human imagination that has been stimulated baffled infuriated and from time to time terrified by the weather blackwells
