defined less by geography than by demographic character block kansas in many ways exemplifies the prevalent yet seldom scrutinized ethnic religion based community of the rural midwest physically small the town sprang up around four corners formed by crossroads spiritually strong and cohesive it became the educational and cultural center for generations of german lutheran families block provided a religious and cultural oasis a welcome transition for german lutheran immigrants faced with a new language and unfamiliar customs yet the tight bond between an ethnic society and a religion that shunned americanism and the english language paradoxically slowed the transition and maintained a culturally isolated community well into the twentieth century in life at four corners carol coburn analyzes the powerful combination of those ethnic and religious institutions that effectively resisted assimilation for nearly 80 years only to succumb to the influences of the outside world during the 1930s and 1940s emphasizing the formal and informal education provided by the church school and family she examines the total process of how values identities and all aspects of culture were transmitted from generation to generation few ethnic or community studies have focused on a village community that defined itself less by geographic boundaries and more by ethnic and religious identity writes coburn the community s strong religious and ethnic identity coupled with its homogeneity and rural isolation provided a unique educational environment that was total ongoing and more pervasive than in most rural settings or ethnic urban environments this book is clearly and engagingly written it opens a window on the inner life of an early rural settlement in kansas and allows the reader to understand the values fears and beliefs of this important group of settlers the author offers insight into the intersection of several variables including gender religion and region glenda riley author of the female frontier a comparative view of women on the prairie and the plains

g k chesterton london and modernity is the first book to explore the persistent theme of the city in chesterton s writing situating him in relation to both victorian and modernist literary paradigms the book explores a range of theoretical and methodological approaches to address the way his imaginative investments and political interventions conceive urban modernity and the central figure of london while chesterton s work has often been valued for its wit and whimsy this book argues that he is also a distinctive urban commentator whose sophistication has been underappreciated in comparison to more canonical contemporaries with chapters written by leading scholars in the field of 20th century literature the book also provides fresh readings and suggests new contexts for central texts such as the man who was thursday the napoleon of notting hill and the father brown stories it also discusses lesser known works such as manalive and the club of queer trades drawing out their significance for scholars interested in urban representation and practice in the first three decades of the 20th century

g r searle s absorbing narrative history breaks conventional chronological barriers to carry the reader from england in 1886 the apogee of the victorian era with the nation poised to celebrate the empress queen s golden jubilee to 1918 as the war to end all wars drew to a close leaving england to come to term with its price above all in terms of human life but also in the general sense that things would never be the same again this was an age of extremes a period of imperial pomp and circumstance with a political elite preoccupied with display and ceremony alongside the growing cult of the simple life the zenith of imperialism with its idealization of war on the one hand the start of the labour party a socialist renaissance and welfare politics on the other and a radical challenging of traditional gender stereotypes in the face of the prevailing cult of masculinity under professor searle s historical microscope all the details of daily life spring into sharp relief half forgotten figures such as edward carpenter vesta tilley and sir henry campbell bannerman take their place on stage beside oscar wilde the pankhursts and lloyd george motoring and aviation to become such an intrinsic part of life within the next decades had their beginnings in this period as pastimes for the rich from the wretched slums of england s great cities to their bustling docks and factories from the grand portals of westminster to the violent political challenges of the ulster unionists and the militant suffrage movement from blackpool s tower and beach packed with holidaymakers to the trenches of the western front the energy creativity and often destructive turmoil of the years 1886 1918 are brought into focus in this magisterial history the new oxford history of england the aim of the new oxford history of england is to give an account of the development of the country over time it is hard to treat that development as just the history which unfolds within the precise boundaries of england and a mistake to suggest that this implies a neglect of the histories of the scots irish and welsh yet the institutional core of the story which runs from anglo saxon times to our own is the story of a state structure built round the english monarchy and its effective successor the crown in parliament while the emphasis of individual volumes in the series will vary the ultimate outcome is intended to be a set of standard and authoritative histories embodying the scholarship of a generation this the third volume to appear in the new oxford history of england covers the period from the repeal of the corn laws to the dramatic failure of gladstone s first home rule bill in his magisterial study of the mid victorian generation theodore hoppen identifies three defining themes the first he calls established industrialism the growing acceptance that factory life and manufacturing had come to stay it was during these four decades that the balance of employment shifted irrevocably for the first time in history more people were employed in industry than worked on the land the second concerns the multiple national identities of the constituent parts of the united kingdom dr hoppen s study of the histories of ireland scotland wales and the empire reveals the existence of a variety of particular and overlapping national traditions flourishing alongside the increasingly influential structure of the unitary state the third defining theme is that of interlocking spheres which the author uses to illuminate the formation of public culture in the period this he argues was generated not by a series of influences operating independently from each other but by a variety of intermeshed political economic scientific literary and artistic developments this original and authoritative book will define these pivotal forty years in british history for the next generation
