leaders play their scale of work and the range of technologies available to them while setting new directions in the 21st century. This book is the first comprehensive leadership textbook with diversity at its heart. It challenges traditional ways of thinking about leadership and presents a comprehensive approach to developing student leadership. It serves as a field guide for conducting leadership classes in schools, camps, and retreats by participating in group leadership activities and building on their newly learned skills. Students gain the confidence needed to become leaders in school activities, athletic programmes, and clubs. What is our best present understanding of good school leadership? How do I lead my school to make it relevant to students of the 21st century? The idea for this book grew out of an international conference organized by the National College for School Leadership, an international future learning from best practice worldwide which explored innovative and significant aspects of educational leadership and brought together international colleagues to generate new understandings. The conference proved a dynamic forum for debate for researchers, academics, policy makers, and practitioners. It was clear at the conference that there was a consensus of understanding around certain key themes that crossed national boundaries in developing leadership. Well-known international contributors explore this consensus to promote the key themes which reflect our best present understanding of good school leadership and to inform school leaders about leading edge thinking which bears on their role. These key ideas, which are highlighted at various points throughout the book, are built around professional learning communities, distributed leadership, strategic thinking about ICT, sustainability, internship, mentoring, and coaching. Contributors include Ray Bolam, Martin Coles, Gary Crow, Clive Dimmock, Dean Fink, David Green, Andy Hargreaves, Sing Kong Lee, Bill Mulford, Fred Paterson, Tony Richardson, Geoff Southworth, James Spillane, Louise Stoll, Ken Stott, Allan Walker, John West, and Burnham. This book, Corporate Leadership from Chanakya, is an effort made to appreciate the scholarly contribution of Chanakya and set up a bridge between ancient Indian leadership thoughts in the modern context. His views on various management functions are so exhaustive that we find no reason for doubting their credibility. The principles and practices that we learn at leading schools today were already being taught by him. These concepts are very relevant to our present context and can solve many current problems. Readers not only learn various leadership attributes from this book but they would also be able to develop a leader in them. This book explores contemporary metaphors of leadership from a biblical or church historical perspective. It seeks to understand the cultural, social, and organizational metaphors from the Bible and the implications for contemporary organizations. Addressing issues such as communication, mentorship, administration, motivation, change management, education, and coaching, the authors explore concepts related to both for-profit and not for profit organizations this book will be a valuable addition to the leadership literature in showing how biblical leadership principles can be used in contemporary organizations inspiring portraits of contemporary african women leaders every decision a leader has ever made has been rooted in something whether good or bad it all starts at the roots in leading from the roots nelson j estrada helps us unravel 11 characteristics of a great leader in this facilitators guide you will help participants identify some best practices for everyday leadership this facilitators guide was designed for those passionate about saving the future of leadership from the ceo of an organization to the leader in a book club these principles were designed to equip you with powerful life changing characteristics that will take your leadership to the optimal level while books and articles on leadership abound most of them are written by successful men who look at the world through the lens of a western business model the standard for success is based on the bottom line financial growth in both the personal and corporate realms this perspective has infected christian leadership literature as well in leadership reconsidered ruth a tucker calls for a revised definition one that abandons the love of power and success for the eternal value of legacy she challenges the assumption that a leader must by definition have followers be an extrovert crave recognition and dominate others instead legacy encompasses the values of behind the scenes influence that are available to everyone and last beyond the grave this unique and refreshing perspective on leadership is accessible and engaging and will make an impact on anyone who takes it to heart alma harris the eld of school leadership is currently preoccupied with the idea of distributed leadership few ideas it seems have provoked as much attention debate and controversy whatever your position on distributed leadership and you cannot fail to have one it is irrefutable that distributed leadership has become the leadership idea of the moment yet it is an idea that can be traced back as far as the mid 20s and possibly earlier so why the interest part of the answer can be found in a move away from theorizing and empirical enquiry focused on the single leader this shift has undoubtedly been fuelled by structural changes within schools and across school systems that have resulted in ternative models or forms of leadership practice evidence highlights how those cupying formal leadership positions are increasingly recognizing the limitations of existing structural arrangements to secure organizational growth and transformation fullan et al 2007 harris et al 2008 chapman et al 2008 as a consequence many heads and principals are actively restructuring realigning and redesigning leadership practice in their school harris 2008 while the terminology to describe such changes varies the core principle is one of extending or sharing leadership practice while scholars have long argued for the need to move beyond those at the top of organizations in order to examine leadership barnard 1968 katz and kahn 1966 until relatively recently much of the school leadership literature has tended
