Fundamentals of Family Medicine 2003-01-14 the idea of producing this book of case histories from general family practice was only a twinkle in the editors eyes until october 1980 when in a room in the marriott hotel in new orleans the editors met with john fry joseph levenstein and bill jackson to discuss new book projects the idea was put to the group which endorsed it enthusiastically encouraged by this and by john fry s advice

the conception of the nature of general family practice took place it was agreed that to illustrate the universal nature of general family practice it would be useful to collect case histories from all around the world that for preference they should be brief and that they should be accompanied by major questions and sub questions but no answers the name vignettes was applied to these cases and their questions subsequently well over a hundred family physicians were asked by letter to provide ten vignettes sixty doctors from ten countries accepted the invitation and forwarded their contributions during the second half of 1981 almost all of those who for a variety of reasons were unable to contribute said they liked the idea and looked forward to using the final product altogether over 600 vignettes were received and 583 selected for final inclusion

bureaucratized and burned out how can the field change before it's too late over the past few decades as American medical practice has become increasingly specialized the number of generalists doctors who care for the whole person has plummeted on paper family medicine sounds noble in practice though the field is so demanding in scope and substance and the health system so favorable to specialists that it cannot be fulfilled by most doctors in searching for the family doctor timothy j hoff weaves together the early history of the family practice specialty in the United States with the personal narratives of modern day family doctors by formalizing this area of practice and instituting specialist level training requirements the originators of family practice hoped to increase respect for generalists improve the pipeline of young medical graduates choosing primary care and in so doing have a major positive impact on the way patients receive care drawing on in depth interviews with fifty five family doctors hoff shows us how these medical professionals have had their calling transformed not only by the indifferent acts of an unsupportive health care system but by the hand of their own medical specialty a specialty that has chosen to pursue short over long term viability conformity over uniqueness and protectionism over collaboration a specialty unable to innovate to keep its membership cohesive and focused on fulfilling the generalist ideal the family doctor hoff explains was conceived of as a powered up version of the country doctor idea at a time when doctor patient relationships are evaporating in the face of highly transactional fast food style medical practice this ideal seems both nostalgic and revolutionary however the realities of highly bureaucratic reimbursement and quality of care requirements educational debt and ongoing consolidation of the old fashioned independent doctor's office into corporate health systems have stacked the deck against the altruists and true believers who are drawn to the profession of family practice as more family doctors wind up working for big health care corporations their career paths grow more parochial balkanizing the specialty their work roles and professional identities are increasingly niche oriented exploring how to save primary care by giving family doctors a fighting chance to become the generalists we need in our lives searching for the family doctor is required reading for anyone interested in the troubled state of modern medicine

Family Practice in the Eastern Mediterranean Region 2019-04-08 one of the exciting challenges of medicine has been the reaching of decisions based on less than complete evidence as undergraduates in teaching hospitals future physicians are taught to think in clear and absolute black and white terms diagnoses in teaching hospitals all are based on supportive positive findings of investigations treatment follows logically on precise diagnosis when patients die the causes of death are confirmed at autopsy how very different is real life in clinical practice and particularly in family medicine by the very nature of the common conditions that present diagnoses tend to be imprecise and based on clinical assessment and interpretation much of the management and treatment of patients is based on opinions of individual physicians based on their personal experiences because of the relative professional isolation of family physicians within their own practices not unexpectedly divergent views and opinions are formed there is nothing wrong in such divergencies because there are no clear absolute black and white decisions general family practice functions in grey areas of medicine where it is possible and quite correct to hold polarized distinct opinions the essence of good care must be eternal flexibility and readiness to change long held cherished opinions to demonstrate that with many issues in family medicine it is possible to have more than one view i selected 10 clinical and ii non clinical topics and invited colleagues and fellow practitioners to enter into a debate in print

Textbook of Family Medicine 2011 my practice life has spanned 36 years and during that time i have been involved in untangling countless mysterious maladies or at least trying to do so all of these efforts were without the benefit of any formal training about family systems i am greatly encouraged by this book because it first draws attention to the intricate web that mankind has woven for itself the family physician has often been caught up in this web and therefore rendered impotent efforts to understand all of this are to be applauded it has been my good fortune to know the editors leonard roberts and michael crouch and as a family physician i feel that their hearts are in the right place they have grown up medically speaking in an era when society has become more complex where life is not easy birth and its medical participants are suspect childhood is complicated by divorce and loneliness adolescence is a time of aimless searching young adults are hard pressed to earn a living the quality of life is being threatened somewhat by the overgrowth of high technology dying with dignity is at a premium the editors are to be commended for helping us clarify the role of the family physician in all of this
