under the influence of globalization the centres of many cities in the industrialised world are losing their place identity the set of cultural markers that define a city s uniqueness and make it instantly recognisable a key task for planners and residents working together is to preserve that unique sense of place without making the city a parody of itself in planning and place in the city marichela sepe explores the preservation reconstruction and enhancement of cultural heritage and place identity she outlines the history of the concept of placemaking and sets out the range of different methods of analysis and assessment that are used to help pin down the nature of place identity this book also uses the author's own survey based method called placemaker to detect elements that do not feature in traditional mapping and identifies appropriate planning interventions case studies investigate cities in europe north america and asia which demonstrate how surveys and interviews can be used to draw up an analytical map of place identity this investigative work is a crucial step in identifying cultural elements which will influence what planning decisions should be taken in the future the maps aim to establish a dialogue with local residents and support planners and administrators in making sustainable changes the case studies are amply illustrated with survey data sheets photos and coloured maps innovative and broad based planning and place in the city lays out an approach to the identification and preservation of place and cultural heritage suitable for students academics and professionals alike at first glance the relationships among tourists tourism maps and the spaces of tourism seem straightforward enough tourists use maps to find their way to and through the sites of history culture nature or recreation represented there less apparent is how tourism maps and those using them construct such spaces and identities as the essays in mapping tourism clearly demonstrate the extraordinary interaction of work with leisure and the everyday with the exotic makes tourism maps ideal sites for exploring the contested construction of place and identity construction sites in the new berlin alabama's civil rights trail quebec city a california ghost town and bangkok's sex trade are among the spaces the essays examined taken together these essays allow us to see tourist space as it truly is contested ever changing and replete with issues of power in place out of place was first published in 1996 minnesota archive editions uses digital technology to make long unavailable books once again accessible and are published unaltered from the original university of minnesota press editions what is the relationship between place and behavior in this fascinating volume tim cresswell examines this question via transgressive acts that are judged as inappropriate not only because they are committed by marginalized groups but also because of where they occur in place out of place seeks to illustrate the ways in which the idea of geographical deviance is used as an ideological tool to maintain an established order cresswell looks at graffiti in new york city the attempts by various hippie groups to hold a free festival at stonehenge during the summer solstices of 1984 86 and the greenham common women s peace camp in berkshire england in each of the cases described the groups involved were designated as out of place both by the media and by politicians whose descriptions included an array of images such as dirt disease madness and foreignness cresswell argues that space and place are key factors in the definition of deviance and conversely that space and place are used to construct notions of order and propriety in addition whereas ideological concepts being expressed about what is good just and appropriate often are delineated geographically the transgression of these delineations reveals the normally hidden relationships between place and ideology in other words the out of place serves to highlight and define the in place by looking at the transgressions of the marginalized cresswell argues we can gain a novel perspective on the normal and taken for granted expectations of everyday life the book concludes with a consideration of the possibility of a politics of transgression arguing for a link between the challenging of spatial boundaries and the possibility of social transformation tim cresswell is currently lecturer in geography at the university of wales hawaiian legends figure greatly in the image of tropical paradise that has come to represent hawaii in popular imagination but what are we buying into when we read these stories as texts in english language translations cristina bacchilega poses this question in her examination of the way these stories have been adapted to produce a legendary hawaii primarily for non hawaiian readers or other audiences with an understanding of tradition that foregrounds history and change bacchilega examines how following the 1898 annexation of hawaii by the united states the publication of hawaiian legends in english delegitimized indigenous narratives and traditions and at the same time constructed them as representative of hawaiian culture hawaiian mo'olelo were translated in popular and scholarly english language publications to market a new cultural product a space constructed primarily for euro americans as something simultaneously exotic and primitive and beautiful and welcoming to analyze this representation of hawaiian traditions place and genre bacchilega focuses on translation across languages cultures and media on photography as the technology that contributed to the visual formation of a westernized image of hawaii and on tourism as determining postannexation economic and ideological machinery in a book with interdisciplinary appeal bacchilega demonstrates both how the myth of legendary hawaii emerged and how this vision can be unmade and reimagined much archaeological work is concerned with identifying gaps in our knowledge and developing strategies for addressing them we perhaps spend less time thinking about how research should proceed when we already know relatively speaking quite a lot the program of dating causewayed enclosures in southern Britain that was published in 2011 as Gathering Time Oxbow Books gave us a new more precise chronology for many individual sites as well as for enclosures as a whole and as a consequence a far better sense of their significance and place in the story of the british early neolithic arguably causewayed enclosures are now the best understood type of neolithic monument yet work continues and in the last few years new discoveries have been made older excavations published and further work undertaken on well known sites viewing this research within the new framework for these monuments allows us to assess where our understanding of enclosures has got to and where the focus of future research should lie this volume originates from a neolithic studies group meeting held in november 2019 which aimed firstly to showcase and explore the wide range of current work on causewayed enclosures and related sites and secondly to assess what we still want to know about these sites in light of the monumental achievement of gathering time the papers collected here comprise reports on recent development led fieldwork academic research and community projects and the volume concludes with a reflection by the authors of gathering time
