comforting a family member or friend soothing children providing company for the elderly ensuring that people feel well enough to work this is all essential labour without it capitalism would cease to function they call it love investigates the work that makes a haven in a heartless world examining who performs this labour how it is organised and how it might change in this groundbreaking book alva gotby calls this work emotional reproduction unveiling its inherently political nature it not only ensures people's well being but creates sentimental attachments to social hierarchy and the status quo drawing on the thought of the feminist movement wages for housework gotby demonstrates that emotion is a key element of capitalist reproduction to improve the way we relate to one another will require a radical restructuring of society
