drawing on performance studies and sacramental and liturgical theology ruthanna b hooke develops a theology of proclamation grounded in the body's experience of preaching the author explores the claim that preaching is a sacramental event of communion with the triune god by comparing the steps involved in voice production with the fourfold shape of the eucharist this comparison yields a description of preaching as an event of self offering that allows space for the humanity of the preacher and as an encounter with the holy spirit that is communal and prophetic preaching draws participants into christ's dying and rising and hence into a mode of power known in vulnerability calling hearers into the eschatological event of the resurrection preaching inherently moves toward proclamation on political and ethical issues hooke uses this theological framework to offer ways of preaching on environmental crisis and on racism the author calls preachers to embodied engagement with preaching and describes a way for preachers to bear witness to jesus christ not only in the content of their proclamation but in their way of being in the preaching event the philosophy of presence seeks to challenge current understandings of meaning and understanding one can trace its origins back to vico dilthey and heidegger though its more immediate exponents include jean luc nancy hans ulrich gumbrecht and such contemporary philosophers of history as frank ankersmit and eelco runia the theoretical paradigm of presence conveys how the past is literally with us in the present in significant and material ways things we cannot touch nonetheless touch us this makes presence a post linguistic or post discursive theory that challenges current understandings of meaning and interpretation presence provides an overview of the concept and surveys both its weaknesses and its possible uses in this book ethan kleinberg and ranjan ghosh bring together an interdisciplinary group of contributors to explore the possibilities and limitations of presence from a variety of perspectives history sociology literature cultural theory media studies photography memory and political theory the book features critical engagements with the presence paradigm within intellectual history literary criticism and the philosophy of history in three original case studies presence illuminates the relationships among photography the past memory and the other what these diverse but overlapping essays have in common is a shared commitment to investigate the attempt to reconnect meaning with something real and to push the paradigm of presence beyond its current uses borsch has not answered all the questions of course who can but his view of the man tradition makes more sense to me than for example perrin s rather cavalier dismissal of the evidence and it not only enlightens but also enlivens the discussion as against the extreme skeptics borsch is also convincing to me in arguing the case for a large measure of authenticity in the son of man tradition in the gospels if the proof of the pudding is in the eating the book constantly calls me back to its pages for insight regarding the problem both in its historical dimension and in its bearing upon the meaning of jesus of nazareth for faith today theology the author is well aware of the difficulties involved in entering a field wherein so much investigation has been done and of this with the positive and negative conclusions he gives an excellent survey crisp and critical the lines opened up will engage the attention of a new and more positive chapter in the form critical argument london quarterly and holborn review frederick h borsch is the retired bishop of the episcopal diocese of los angeles and professor of new testament and chair of anglican studies at the lutheran theological seminary at philadelphia he is also the former dean of the chapel at princeton university his other books include the spirit searches everything keeping life's questions the bible's authority in today's church introducing the lessons of the church year a guide for lay readers and congregations and the christian and gnostic son of man roy rosenzweig and david thelen asked 1 500 americans about their connection to the past and how it influences their daily lives and hopes for the future the result is a surprisingly candid series of conversations and reflections on how the past infuses the present with meaning while the past is omnipresent to americans history as it is usually defined in textbooks leaves many people cold rosenzweig and thelen found that history as taught in school does not inspire a strong connection to the past and they reveal how race and ethnicity affect how americans perceive the past in scandinavian colonialism and the rise of modernity small time agents in a global arena archaeologists anthropologists and historians present case studies that focus on the scope and impact of scandinavian colonial expansion in the north africa asia and america as well as within scandinavia itsself they discuss early modern thinking and theories made valid and developed in early modern scandinavia that justified and propogated participation in colonial expansion the volume demonstrates a broad and comprehensive spectrum of archaeological anthropological and historical research which engages with a variation of themes relevant for the understanding of danish and swedish colonial history from the early 17th century until today the aim is to add to the on going global debates on the context of the rise of the modern society and to revitalize the field of early modern studies in scandinavia where methodological nationalism still determines many archaeological and historical studies through their theoretical commitment critical outlook and application of postcolonial theories the contributors to this book shed a new light on the processes of establishing and maintaining colonial rule hybridization and creolization in the sphere of material culture politics of resistance and responses to the colonial claims this volume is a fantastic resource for graduate students and researchers in historical archaeology scandinavia early modern history and anthropology of colonialism ancestral presence tells a history that has more than one history in it while also telling the story of the relation between worlds for the fuyuge people of the papuan highlands the past is not history in a conventional sense for them the world and its history derives from a creator force called tidibe which is central to fuyuge cosmology the fuyuge are at the centre of the world but fuyuge people are part of another history too they have experienced decades of mission and government influence from centres of power located elsewhere to which their mountain home is marginal and remote through a detailed exploration of fuyuge myth changes to ritual life and cosmology eric hirsch weaves an account of the relationship between these two histories he documents the real changes wrought by colonialism government and christianity from the late nineteenth century to the turn of the millennium yet this is not a story of continuity and change hirsch demonstrates how transformation was always central to fuyuge life changes brought by missionaries and government were processes they themselves initiated in the ancestral past through tidibe the cosmological creator force engaging in debates that have been pivotal to melanesian anthropology the book presents an ethnographically rich account of a distinctive world cosmology and ideas of historical change it also raises questions regarding assumptions central to western history its worldview and ideas of historical time this book examines the ways in which recent u s latina literature challenges popular definitions of nationhood and national identity it explores a group of feminist texts that are representative of the u s latina literary boom of the 1980s 1990s and 2000s when an emerging group of writers gained prominence in mainstream and academic circles through close readings of select contemporary mexican american puerto rican and cuban american works maya socolovsky argues that these narratives are remapping the united states so that it is fully integrated within a larger hemispheric americas looking at such concerns as nation place trauma and storytelling writers denise chavez sandra cisneros esmeralda santiago ana castillo himilce novas and judith ortiz cofer challenge popular views of latino cultural unbelonging and make strong cases for the legitimate presence of latin@s within the united states in this way they also counter much of today's anti immigration rhetoric imagining the u s as part of a broader americas these writings trouble imperialist notions of nationhood in which political borders and a long history of intervention and colonization beyond those borders have come to shape and determine the dominant culture's writing and the defining of all latinos as other to the nation johnson's critical presence demonstrates how johnson's criticism has for long been divided from the issues of modern criticism by historical narratives that have marked the progress of criticism from classic to romantic the image of johnson constructed by his immediate antagonists has been preserved by the routines of historical representation and mediated to the present day most recently by the characterizations of radical theory by an in depth analysis of major works by johnson smallwood argues that the historicization of eighteenth century criticism can be more fruitfully understood in the light of the dialogic and translational historiography of such thinkers as collingwood and ricoeur and that the contexts of johnson s criticism must include the poetry he read as well as the theories he espoused in this way the book reinstates johnson s presence as critic while displacing the history of ideas as the leading paradigm for conceptualizing the history of criticism the eastern subarctic has long been portrayed as a place without history challenging this perspective history in the making the archaeology of the eastern subarctic charts the complex and dynamic history of this little known archaeological region of north america along the way the book explores the social processes through which native peoples made history in the past and archaeologists and anthropologists later wrote about it as such the book offers both a critical history and historiography of the eastern subarctic
