for centuries muslim countries and Europe have engaged one another through theological dialogues, diplomatic missions, political rivalries and power struggles. In the last thirty years, due in large part to globalization and migration from Islamic countries to the West, what was previously an engagement across national and cultural boundaries has increasingly become an internalized encounter within Europe itself. Questions of the hijab in schools, freedom of expression in the wake of the Danish cartoon crisis and the role of sharia have come to the forefront of contemporary European discourse. The Oxford Handbook of European Islam is the first collection to present a comprehensive approach to the multiple and changing ways Islam has been studied across European countries. Parts one to three address the state of knowledge of Islam and Muslims within a selection of European countries, while presenting a critical view of the most up-to-date data specific to each country. These chapters analyze the immigration cycles and policies related to the presence of Muslims, tackling issues such as discrimination, post-colonial identity, adaptation and assimilation. The thematic chapters in parts four and five examine secularism, radicalization, sharia, hijab and Islamophobia with the goal of synthesizing different national discussions into a more comparative theoretical framework. The handbook attempts to balance cutting-edge assessment with the knowledge that the content itself will eventually be superseded by events. Featuring eighteen newly commissioned essays by noted scholars in the field, this volume will provide an excellent resource for students and scholars interested in European studies, immigration, Islamic studies and the sociology of religion.

Italy Revisited 1875

on july 25 1943 news of mussolini s resignation and subsequent arrest stunned italians leaving them dumbfounded after two decades fascism had fallen without any advance warning as festive events marked the incredible outcome and reminders of the past were destroyed an uncontrollable joy seemed to pervade italians but what did people actually celebrate how did they understand the bygone dictatorship which was soon to be reincarnated in the italian social republic rsi drawing on more than one hundred diaries written by ordinary citizens and some prominent figures as well and inspired by raymond williams s concept of structures of feeling the book examines italians perspectives on fascism at a very critical moment in their history with the country mired in a devastating war further complicated by the september 8 1943 armistice with the allies and subsequent german occupation followed by the eruption of an italian against italian conflict the switching of alliances and the declaration of war against germany on october 13 1943 the fast pace of history seemed to deflect italians attention from their immediate past amidst the daily experience of bombings hunger displacement and death coming to terms with twenty years of dictatorship turned out to be an arduous enterprise whether those who had lived under the fascist regime wished not to think of it and not to speak any more about it as philosopher benedetto croce maintained it is hard to ascertain in truth little is known of what italians felt and thought about fascism after its precipitous demise this book remedies the gap in historical scholarship by assessing how italians confronted their present and negotiated their past during the two years from the fall of the regime to the definitive defeat of the rsi and the end of the world war in may 1945 by bringing to life the cultural imaginaries and practices of the past the book raises ostensibly intractable questions on the epochal impact of what often appears as inconsequential the typically unseen and seemingly banal power of everyday experiences islam in europe and islamophobia are subjects of vital global importance which currently preoccupy policy makers and academics alike through the examination of various european muslim groups and institutions that have branched off from islamic movements including the muslim brotherhood hizb ut tahrir and jama at i islami this book outlines the configuration of social political and religious processes that have given rise to new kinds of european muslim organisations the authors offer a new perspective on these muslim groups and seek to reclaim them from the often highly charged public debates by placing them within the context of their origins as politicised religious movements on the one hand and their ongoing incorporation into european societal structures on the other they also consider the relationship of these organisations to their parent movements and examine the presence of islam in european education and higher education institutions taking into account the connection between islamic movements and the perceived surge of islamophobia in europe this book does not debate the question of whether these groups fit into normative or cultural structures of european nation states but rather examines how these structures have changed through their interaction with these groups and the growing muslim population within europe it does not consider political islam as the antithesis to a refined notion of secularism but as a form of public religion which contributes to the ever changing structure of europe s secular regimes featuring the work of more than 40 scholars from around the world this is the comprehensive guide to islamic movements in europe offering original definitive perspectives on muslims and islam in europe today it will be essential reading for policy makers political commentators and scholars alike
